They typically would approach clients who would say yes. -He had reached out to the contractor who agreed to work with the facility to resolve the problem. Interviews on 6/17/19 and 6/19/19 with the Program Director revealed: -An assessment was conducted with each new client upon admission to the program. The client would then sign the treatment plan. -Treatment plans were individualized to the program, not to the client. -Treatment plans were designed to be broad and cover the big picture. A client's treatment plan was reviewed 10 months in to the program to determine at that time what had been accomplished. -The treatment plan was not typically updated except one time per year. -During the first 30 days the goal was for clients to attend groups, not be at work. -After the first 30 days when clients started work. they began mandatory evening groups. If they were unable to make the meeting he would provide them with homework assignments and remind them of meeting requirements that needed to be met. -The meetings provided were a 12-week 12 step program, 8-week Relationships series, 8-week Anger Management series, and 8 week Relapse Prevention series.

Clients should have 3 days off per week. Some clients may volunteer for additional hours. -There was no set number of meetings a week or month that clients had to complete but they were required to complete all educational classes prior to graduation from the program. -Some client work hours were above where they needed to be. The role of the Contracts manager was shifting to better manage the work schedules. -"We cannot let people work 70 hours a week." -Initial goals into the program were to attend groups, stabilize from active drug use and get oriented to the program. -Goal progress was monitored by a combination of the House Managers, clinical staff, the Contracts Manager and peer leaders. -A clinical staff member completed the initial treatment plan. The plan was reviewed annually. -There was no expectation to review the plan for progress or goal achievement more than once a year.
